PROVO — Five members of a single family in one class seems to be some kind of a record at Brigham Young university; but besides that, its "a lot of fun" for the five family members.

Rollicking through their freshman year at the "Y" are five Moultons: Deaun, Evelyn, Maxine, Floyd and Rex.

Continuing a now well-established family tradition of attendance at B Y U, the three daughters and two sons of Mr. and Mrs. H. Chase Moulton, 1964-9th East, Salt Lake City, are following in the footsteps of their mother and two older sisters.

More to Come

There are more to come, too. Second Lt. E. Jay Moulton, still with the U. S. army air forces, may attend next year, "if we can talk him into it," say his sisters. Younger sister Mardene also is a likely prospect for next year, and there are three younger brothers growing up.

Sharing an apartment, the three girls are across-the-fence neighbors to the boys in Provo, and are handy when discussion comes up about their common problems as freshman students — especially about freshman composition, their one class in common.

Filled L D S Mission

Deaun, the eldest, filled an L D S mission in California from May, 1944, to December, 1945. Less than a month after her return, she and her two sisters, Evelyn and Maxine [illegible] at the B Y U. Gr[illegible] scho[illegible]

Deaun, the eldest, filled an L D S mission in California from May, 1944, to December, 1945. Less than a month after her return, she and her two sisters, Evelyn and Maxine, enrolled at the B Y U. Graduates from South high school, they were both working when the academic bug hit them again. "We made up our minds to come to B Y U just three days before we came," Deaun confessed with a laugh, "but we're glad we came. We love every minute of it." The Moulton girls are principally interested in music, speech and religion.

Floyd is an air forces veteran just out of the service. He served as an instrument specialist with the British-based air arms. He will continue in the study of aeronautics. Rex is the youngest of the family at the "Y," just out of South high, and is taking basic courses.

THERE ARE STILL MORE YET TO COME

All Moultons and all freshmen are these five Salt Lake City brothers and sisters, who are enrolled at Brigham Young University. Left to right are Floyd, Deaun, Maxine, Evelyn and Rex Moulton.
